

A PORTFOLIO OF TWENTY NEW

Canadian Bungalows

ONE DOLLAR

The modern bungalows illustrated in this portfolio have been specially designed for the Canadian Prairie climate and take into consideration the modern trend towards an open type of plan with new window treatments and ranch type exteriors which are becoming more and more popular. All the bungalows in this portfolio have been designed for basements.

In many cases new methods of construction have been utilized, for example, two houses have been designed specially for Supercrete concrete blocks.

Many further suggestions for better construction, more pleasing effects, and economy are to be found on the working drawings. For example, when a fireplace is to be installed the Tweed steel unit is suggested for its ease of installation and insurance of sturdy construction. For appearance such products as Styrotile for bathrooms and kitchens, Arborite for counter tops and Expanko cork tile for living room floors are recommended.

Something new in design! Departing from the traditional this home marks its occupants as progressive thinkers.

The most interesting feature is the original treatment of the roof which incorporates low pitched and flat planes.

The modern theme is further carried out in the planning of the dining-living area which opens onto a low terrace.

The complete separation of the sleeping quarters and the clever integration of the living areas provides in this house an interesting solution to the problem of modern living.

A note of interest is added in the form of chrome pillars and louvered ceiling in the reception hall.

The plumbing installation is simplified by the proximity of the kitchen to the bathroom.

Ample closet space is provided and is well distributed throughout this house.

A separate dining room is included but the large kitchen may also be used for the more informal meals.

A note of interest is added to the entrance vestibule through the use of a glazed partition.

Here is another contemporary house relying on clean cut lines and the intrinsic beauty of its materials rather than on applied ornamentation.

Unusual in plan and elevation this home creates and sustains the feeling of comfort. A massive fireplace forms the focal point of the living area and the kitchen-dining facilities have been integrated into one compact unit. Not one foot of space has been wasted in this house as is readily seen in the layout of both the living and sleeping quarters.

The side entrance to this house not only provides a varied approach but permits an unobstructed view from the unusually large living-room and keeps to a minimum the amount of hall space.

The two bedrooms are placed so as to give the utmost privacy and this modern approach to the segregation of activities is further carried out in the relationship of the kitchen-dining-living areas.

The conveniently located rear entrance permits easy access to the basement and kitchen from outdoors.

The overall appearance is greatly enhanced by the wide overhanging eaves and the accents placed on the low horizontal lines.

design 5306

The ideal home for the smaller lot, this plan features two spacious bedrooms with generous closet space. The U-shaped kitchen is efficiently arranged to eliminate any unnecessary steps. Adjoining the kitchen and enjoying a front view is a compact dinette.

Entrance is gained through a large reception hall and the rear door is fully protected from the elements by a screened porch.

Added to this is the economical back-to-back plumbing that makes this house an ideal home for the family with the smaller budget.

design 5320

Designed for a twenty-five foot lot this house makes good use of every foot of space and at the same time maintains the utmost privacy.

The kitchen is planned with ample space for dining at one end. The grade entrance is a popular feature and allows free passage to the basement storage area from outdoors. The bedroom is large and contains a walk-in closet and storage room which will appeal to the woman of the house. A second plan, not shown, contains two bedrooms at the rear. This plan may be obtained on request.
